

‘Workshop on Importance of IPR in Academics’

Date: -23/10/2024

Place: NCMS-Seminar Hall

Number of Beneficiaries: In House- 44 3rd Year BCA, 1st Year BCA, 1st Year MBA, 5 Faculties

Objective:

The objective of introducing Intellectual Property Rights (IPR) in academics is to foster a culture of innovation and legal awareness among students and faculty. It aims to educate them on protecting their original ideas and research through proper IP channels. This initiative encourages academic contributions that can have a meaningful impact beyond the institution. Ultimately, it supports the creation of intellectual assets that benefit both the individual and the larger community.

Brief Write up on the Programme: [min 10 lines]:

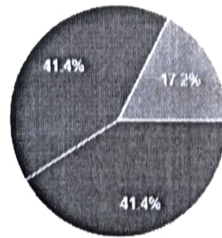

NCMS in association with KSCST organized the Workshop on Importance of IPR in Academics. In a session led by Dr. Sarasija Padmanabhan, Patent Agent and WIPO Tutor, the importance of Intellectual Property Rights (IPR) in academia was highlighted. Dr. Padmanabhan explained how IPR safeguards innovations, research, and creative works, offering legal protection for new ideas. In academic settings, securing IP helps in recognizing and rewarding original research, promotes innovation, and encourages students and faculty to develop unique solutions to real-world problems. Understanding IPR is essential for building a culture of respect for intellectual property, ensuring that academic contributions can make a lasting impact in both education and industry.

Learning Outcome:

- Understand the different types of intellectual property and their applications in protecting research and innovations.
- Gain practical knowledge on the process of filing for patents, copyrights, and trademarks.
- Recognize the role of IPR in fostering innovation and encouraging original contributions within academic settings.
